COSTA RICA - ASK THE EXPERT: JULIE

For me, travel isn't just about where I went; it's what I did when I got there. In magnificent Costa Rica, I visited a coffee plantation and explored the Caribbean coast line on an eco tour. I zip lined the jungle canopy, rode a boat thru the canals of Tortuguero, and hiked into the Tirimbina Biological Reserve where I made chocolate using pre-Columbian methods from cacao beans. I went white water rafting on the Sarapiquí River and drove an ATV at the Arenal Volcano in La Fortuna. Costa Rica is a country that has almost too much to take in all at once! In 10 days, I saw and did so much yet I never made it to the Pacific Coast line, the Monteverde Cloud Forest, or visited the cheeky white face capuchin monkeys in Manuel Antonio National Park. I look forward to the day that I can go back!
